THE "JIM DUFF" TAX

We wish to make a suggestion. Let's give credit where credit is due.

Pennsylvania is shortly to begin enforcing a complicated, contentious sales tax which thus far is nameless. It represents the best which a bitter and disillusioned legislature could do to bail the State out of its debts and deficits.

One man above all others was responsible for that sales tax. He was responsible for its need and responsible for the fact that after two and one-half years of consideration the tax measure ultimately decided upon is in form bound to cause further annoyances and controversies.

The man in question whose part certainly should not be forgotten is former Governor James Henderson Duff, now United States Senator. Conscientious Pennsylvania citizens should not allow themselves to forget the record which "Rough, Tough Duff" wrote while in office.

He rode into the Governorship on the coat-tails of Governors James and Martin. These two prudent and efficient administrators, between them, carved the State's debts to the lowest point in a generation, reduced taxes, and left on

Manhattan Soap Strike Enters Its Second Day Here 283 Workers Demand Boost Of 5-8 Cents

A strike of 283 workers at the Manhattan Soap company plant entered its second day today with no hope for early settlement.

Frank J. Field, president of Local 373, United Chemical Workers (CIO), said that a demand by the union for a one year contract, with a five-cent increase for women and eight cents for men employees has not been met by the company.

Field, speaking without the support of fellow strikers, told a Courier reporter that the local had begun its negotiations with the company on June 8.

2 Contracts

"They offered us a choice of two contracts," Field said. "The first one offers five cents on a 16-month basis, the second would give us five cents and a cost of living increase on a 40-month contract."

Presently the women earn between $1.12 to $1.25 an hour, while the men's wages range between $1.45 to $1.95.

Field explained the company offer for the 40-month contract this way. Workers would start with a five-cent increase "across the board" (both men and women) but would receive 2½ cents in 1954 and 2½ cents in 1955, providing the cost of living index stayed at its present level or is raised. If lowered, the five-cent raise would stay in effect.

The Government's cost of living index table is now at 114 and rising slowly.

Hospitalization Raised

Another stipulation of the union's demands, according to Field, has been met by the company in both alternate offers, and would raise the daily hospitalization benefits from $7 to $9 per day.

Field's fellow employees refused to go along with any statement made by the president, and said any information obtained from him is strictly unofficial.

Rep. King Proposes Deepening Channel In House Measure

Rep. Karl C. King of Morrisville (R-Pa.) introduced a bill yesterday authorizing necessary funds for deepening the Delaware River channel from Trenton to Philadelphia.

The bill, like an identical one introduced into the Senate, provides "for improvements recommended by the chief of engineers in his report dated Jan. 23, 1953, at an estimated cost of $91,889,000."

"Since Congress is pushing to adjourn at the end of next week," Congressman King said, "no action on these bills can be expected this session, but I am anxious to see the work started at the earliest possible date."

Living Costs Hit New High

Mr. John Q. Public got another jolt in the billfold today, and it was the same old story, from where he stood.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which keeps tabs on the nation's price index, reported prices hit record peak of 4 per cent from mid-May to mid-June, about one per cent higher than a year ago, and 12.5 per cent over the index for June, 1950, when the Korean war started.

Most of the food price decline earlier this year was wiped out by a 1.4 per cent increase recently reported.

Vegetables and fruits rose 5.6 per cent; meats, fish, and poultry 1.9 per cent; pork, 6 per cent; and lamb, 4 per cent.

Playground Table Listed for Bristol For 5-Day Period

Next week's local playground activities will include everything from coloring books, to horse shoes, to softball, according to Borough Playground Director Paul D. Brown.

Events are arranged from three age groups, for four-year-olds on up. Special contests will be held in Bristol's four school playgrounds next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Inter-playground softball matches will be played next Monday through Friday, at 10:15 a. m. and 2 p. m.

The special contests will be held on all four school fields, Monday through Wednesday at 1 p. m. The grounds are at Bristol High School, Wilson avenue; and Jefferson avenue, Bath street and Wood street Schools.

Phonemen Out

INDIANAPOLIS—Bell Telephone Company workers left their jobs in Indianapolis today, idling more than two-thirds of the utility's 6,900 working force. The capital city shutdown added 1,900 strikers to the total of 21,000 who left their jobs in Indiana yesterday. The strike began Wednesday when 800 workers left their jobs in the northern part of the hoosier state.

Tanker Burns

WILMINGTON—The Coast Guard said seven men were reported missing today when the tanker Pan Georgia suddenly burst into flames off Wilmington, Del., and the fire spread to two tugboats. Eight men were injured—two seriously—in the mishap which occurred while the tanker was being towed by a tug from the Sico Oil Company dock, where it discharged 115,000 barrels of oil and gasoline yesterday.

Levittown Shop Center Tax Fee Hit by Residents

TULLYTOWN, July 24—A borough councilman last night charged that the tax assessment on residential land in Levittown is only $200 per acre lower than the figure for the Levittown Shopping Center.

The assertion was made by Councilman John Lucisano, at a meeting of Council, the school board, Chief County Assessor Elwood Britton and several residents, in the Main street school house.

They met in the upstairs classroom, where the group sat in pupils' desks and fired questions at Britton, the chief assessor said the shopping center site, with all other commercial land in Bucks County, is assessed at $3,000 an acre.

4-6 On One Acre

Stating that with the 70 by 100-foot Levittowner lots assessed at $700 each, four to six would occupy an acre, Councilman John Lucisano pointed out that the residential assessments equal $2,800 an acre.

Asked the new assessment of the Levittown shopping center, to be posted August 15, Britton said: "I don't know, there are no figures yet."

In reply to a remark by a councilman that William J. Levitt, has announced that he is building a $25,000,000 shopping center, Britton described that estimate as "way out of line."

To Go To Court?

The correct way to appeal the assessments, Britton said, would be to go to court after August 15, "when the assessment rolls are made public."

"Something is wrong," said Russell Firth, school board president. "At present we have three school rooms. We have to build a 12-room

Bristol Boy, 11, Burned in Blast Of Chemistry Set

Edmund Green, Jr., 11, 109 Fillmore street, Bristol, was treated at the Bristol General Hospital yesterday after he suffered second-degree burns from the explosion of a chemistry experiment, according to a fire department sources.

Green was playing with Thomas Ficht, 11, and Leonard Palermo, 10, in the latter's basement at 1426 Farragut avenue. The boys, using a lighted candle and a plastic dish, kept adding various mixtures, including a lot of sulphur. They said that when they added some alcohol the mixture exploded with a loud noise followed by a flash of flame.

Ficht and Palermo heard Green screaming, and saw that his clothes were ablaze. They picked him up and carried him out into the yard, where they rolled him in the wet grass.

Water, Sewerage Conference Delayed Pending Survey

A meeting of Bensalem Township Authority and Lower Southampton Township Supervisors, scheduled last night at Bensalem High School, turned into an informal discussion of water and sewerage problems, inasmuch as the Lower Southampton officials have not had an engineering survey of the project conducted thus far, it was announced today. Bensalem Authority has already made such a survey.

Another conference will be called when the engineering survey is completed, and efforts will be made to coordinate them to solve water and sewerage problems confronting the two municipalities, C. Burnley White, Authority official, said.

DONORS AID PATIENT

Bristol Blood Donors yesterday moved Mrs. Louise Bell, of 625 Race street, to Bristol General Hospital for treatment, and home. Mrs. Emily Shores, of 311 Wilson street, was returned from Nazareth Hospital; Albert Perrin, 620 Montgomery avenue, Bryn Mawr, to Bristol General Hospital.

"Five teachers answered the ad, and I had wonderful results," reports Mrs. Wolfgang.

Penn Fruit Stock Increase Passed

Stockholders of Penn Fruit Co., at a special meeting in Philadelphia yesterday, approved creation of a new class of $6,000 shares of $50 par convertible preferred and an increase in authorized common from $60,000 to $80,000 shares.

Samuel Cooke, president, told the stockholders the company, in addition to stores now under construction, also has several others in the planning stages and said it "plans to extend its coverage to areas within practical trucking distance of our Philadelphia headquarters."

Food Fair Sales

Food Fair Stores reported record sales of $292,659,754 in fiscal year ended April 25, an increase of 12.74 percent over the previous peak set in 1952. Earnings rose to $4,535,918, or $1.86 a common share from $3,885,286, or $1.57 a share, for the previous year.

George Friedland, president, reported that Food Fair last year moved up to 16th place among the nation's largest food chains.

Choose Clothes to Suit Type

The business girl chooses tailored clothes and a coiffure that's simple to shampoo, easy to keep looking smart.

By HELEN FOLLETT

How do you feel about shopping for clothes? Do you find it a pleasure or a bore?

Of course, the pretty young thing of perfect proportions has little trouble in finding just the right frock. But we weren't all made to look alike and the important thing is for a woman to know how to type herself. This requires some knowledge of basic principles and, even more, knowledge of the do's and don'ts.

Check on Fit

Are you short or long-waisted? If short-waisted, look carefully at the fit of your bodice in the back; it is likely to have crosswise folds. If your waistline is low-torso long, legs short—do not select skirts with much hip fullness.

Note necklines when buying frocks. No round lines for the short, plump neck; they will just make the neck look fatter. But if said that the local plant could no longer handle the demands by the strikers, and any settlement would have to be made through their New York office.

The company also agreed to an additional $2 per day increase in hospitalization, and a day off with pay to attend the funeral of someone in the immediate family.

Negotiations Still On

Negotiations have been going on since the end of June. A meeting was held Tuesday at which Crooker, Albert Lewis, personnel manager, and union representatives were present.

Machines were taken out of Manhattan and sent to Omaha," said Field, "and since then we have not been on a full-scale production basis. Approximately 400 to 500 workers are usually employed."

The two groups have not reached a decision regarding the next meeting.

Boy Scouts Head For Home From Calif. Jamboree

Bucks county Boy Scouts, among thousands of others, were heading for home today or preparing to do so, following conclusion of the third national Scout Jamboree at Corona Del Mar, Calif.

Some 21,000 scouts depart today but it will be Sunday before the vast Tent City disappears. By then scouts from every state in the union, the territories and 18 foreign countries will be homeward bound.

The week-long Jamboree closed last night to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" after a massive show,

"Scouting's Trail to the Future" in which 8700 scouts took part.

With Roscoe Ates, actor, acting as narrator, the boys put on a demonstration of all the scouting skills—burro packing, canoe camping, bicycle hikes, trek carts, first aid, fire fighting, disaster relief and others.

Then with a huge Liberty Bell bridging the disaster scene to the Brotherhood of Nations, the scouts marched on stage with 240 international flags. Delegates from the foreign nations also took part in this part of the show.

A plea for tolerance and brotherhood was voiced by Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, the scouts' chief executive. "Continue to live in the principles of brotherhood of all men," he said.

New Canal Offer

CAIRO — Egypt is waiting today for Britain's reply to a three-point offer designed to end the dangerous Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez Canal Zone. Senate Today Gets Bill Calling for Triple Sessions

HARRISBURG, July 24 — (INS)

The State Senate was scheduled to consider today the Helm-Wood Bill, which Bucks County educators have charged would hamstring the building of new public schools.

The bill, which already has passed the House, would require a public referendum before a school board could contract for construction of any school building worth more than five per cent of taxable real estate in the district.

It was this apparent bar to new building that prevented passage of the bill in the Senate yesterday. It was passed over to permit introduction of amendments today.

One amendment expected to be introduced today will raise the limit on new construction to $225 million.

Bucks county superintendent of Schools Charles Boehm was in Harrisburg yesterday to argue against the measure.

Helicopter, Jeep To Recover Planes

A Navy helicopter teamed with a jeep truck will search for airplanes that stray "off limits" during the 1953 National Model Airplane Championships to be held at Willow Grove Naval Air Station from July 27 to August 2. Captain J. A. Moreno, the station's Commanding officer, announced today.

The helicopter, part of the Navy's aircraft exhibit during the week-long meet, will keep watch around the airfield to spot straying models before they fly out of sight. The jeep, in radio contact with the helicopter, can be dispatched to the model's landing site.

Willow Grove Naval Air Station is holding open house, starting Tuesday until the meet's finish Sunday. Entrance to the air station is on Easton Road, U. S. Highway 11, six miles north of Willow Grove. The station gates will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Business Sessions Held for Church

HULMEVILLE, July 24—A meeting of the official board preceded the quarterly conference in Neshaminy Methodist Church last evening. George Fetter, Pennel, served as chairman at the former session, and Dr. Paul Polay, superintendent of the North District, Phila. Conference presided at the quarterly conference. Eleven were in attendance.

Minutes were presented by Harold Dosenburg; and report of finance by Frank Harper, Bensalem twp. Treasurer of benevolences, Miss Erda M. Schatt, also gave her report.

The pastor, the Rev. Merritt Godshalk, told of plans for speakers at four special evangelistic meetings Sept. 27, 30, Oct. 4 and 7; and also reported that 12 members of the Youth Fellowship will attend Pocono Plateau Institute with the Rev. and Mrs. Godshalk in August.

Report for the Woman's Society of Christian Service, sent in by vice president, Mrs. Vincent Latham, was read.

Parents Should Start Early To Teach Child Unselfishness

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PH.D.

YOU and I know some very unselish persons, but they were not born that way. They learned to be unselish.

Self-preservation is a very useful instinct that has helped the individual person to survive. But it needs to be modified if he is to be happy, liked and enjoyed by others.

As soon as the baby can reach, he begins to seize anything he can, and for months or years thereafter he feels that everything within his grasp is his. By and by he may choose to share things, even to give up some of his most precious ones or exercise effort and self-sacrifice to make others happier.

Regard for Others' Rights

The first essential in reducing selfishness in the young child is to train him early to avoid certain things and acts, to educate him in reasonable restraints and regard for the rights of others, enabling him all the better to respond to positive suggestions and other influences toward unselfish ways.

Wisely we don't, as a rule, command the tot two, three or four to share his playthings. Rather, we set the stage so he gradually will choose to share. Accordingly, we help protect this child's possessions so he will feel that the toy he lets another child use is safe. We practice no end of patience at persuading this tot to share, and then warmly approve his doing so. We go on finding new ways to cause him to do unselfish things and to win satisfaction therefrom.

Of course, he needs to play freely with many other children of his age. In the long run, his playmates can do most to cultivate unselfishness in him. But let us not forget that we help the child to be more ready to learn from his playmates to be unselfish if we teach him the meaning of "No." Certainly the child who has learned in his early years that he can't have everything he wants when he wants it, or can't always do as he pleases, is more ready to restrain himself in these directions when he is playing with other children.

We parents and grandparents often assume that our children and grandchildren will emulate our own unselfishness. They may when they often see us be unselfish toward persons other than themselves.

But when children are nearly always on the receiving end of our unselfishness, they tend to grow more selfish, and instead of feeling grateful to us they may expect of us, even demand of us, more self-denials and sacrifices for them. The most unselfish and ungrateful children five, twelve or twenty are those whose parents have given up too much to gratify these children's whims, wishes and demands.

Think of all the mothers laboring over stoves and ironing boards, or sewing and mending late at night, so their children may be well dressed; of the mothers whose adolescent sons command them at any time to be their tailors, or who are scolded by their daughters for not having laundered their apparel just right.

This I discuss in a new bulletin, "The Very Selfish Child," to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this newspaper.

Helicopter, Jeep To Recover Planes

A Navy helicopter teamed with a jeep truck will search for airplanes that stray "off limits" during the 1953 National Model Airplane Championships to be held at Willow Grove Naval Air Station from July 27 to August 2. Captain J. A. Moreno, the station's Commanding officer, announced today.

The helicopter, part of the Navy's aircraft exhibit during the week-long meet, will keep watch around the airfield to spot straying models before they fly out of sight. The cap, in radio contact with the helicopter, can be dispatched to the model's landing site.

Willow Grove Naval Air Station is holding open house, starting Tuesday until the meet's finish Sunday. Entrance to the air station is on Easton Road, U. S. Highway 31, six miles north of Willow Grove. The station gates will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Business Sessions Held for Church

HULMEVILLE, July 24—A meeting of the official board preceded the quarterly conference in Neshaminy Methodist Church last evening. George Fetters, Pennel, served as chairman at the former session, and Dr. Paul Polay, superintendent of the North District, Phila. Conference, presided at the quarterly conference. Eleven were in attendance.

Minutes were presented by Harold Dusenbury; and report of finance by Frank Harper, Bensalem twp. Treasurer of benevolences, Miss Erda M. Schatt, also gave her report.

The pastor, the Rev. Merritt Godshalk, told of plans for speakers at four special evangelistic meetings Sept. 27, 30, Oct. 4 and 7, and also reported that 12 members of the Youth Fellowship will attend Pocono Plateau institute with the Rev. and Mrs. Godshalk in August.

Report for the Woman's Society of Christian Service, sent in by vice president, Mrs. Vincent Latham, was read.

Parents Should Start Early To Teach Child Unselfishness

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

of his age. In the long run, his playmates can do most to cultivate unselfishness in him. But let us not forget that we help the child to be more ready to learn from his playmates to be unselfish if we teach him the meaning of "No." Certainly the child who has learned in his early years that he can't have everything he wants when he wants it, or can't always have it, is more ready to restrain himself in these directions when he is playing with other children.

We parents and grandparents often assume that our children and grandchildren will emulate our own unselfishness. They may when they often see us be unselfish toward persons other than themselves.

But when children are nearly always on the receiving end of our unselfishness, they tend to grow more selfish, and instead of feeling grateful to us they may expect of us, even demand of us, more self-denials and sacrifices for them. The most unselfish and ungrateful children five, twelve or twenty are those whose parents have given up too much to gratify these children's whims, wishes and demands.

Think of all the mothers laboring over stoves and ironing boards, or sewing and mending late at night, so their children may be well dressed; of the mothers whose adolescent sons command them at any time to be their tailors, or who are scolded by their daughters for not having laundered their apparel just right.

This I discuss in a new bulletin,

"The Very Selfish Child," to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this newspaper.

Long Pants

At Schwartz, they are currently previewing what boys will wear next fall if they're smart, sartorially speaking. From the diaper up, they'll tend toward long pants. As Harry Schwartz puts it, "the minute today's kid gets out of nightgowns, he seems to cry for ice cream and long pants."

Skidding on the knees is a favorite hobby of small boys, so the most practical of duo-purpose suits come with two pairs of pants. This firm takes an even broader approach to the duo-purpose idea by offering the "10-timer suit."

This is a suit which may be varied 10 different ways. And it consists of two pairs of pants in different fabrics, one sport and one dressy; a reversible vest made of two fabrics; and a sport jacket to match one of the pairs of pants. There are also caps to match and men's shirts to coordinate. Another natty ensemble is the three-piece suit with the "built-in" watch pocket. This is a wool slack, a shirt appliqued with a plaid watch pocket on its side front, and a jacket to match the slacks.

Really dressy young men will like the gay tweed sport coat with placket front buttoning and a simple million lining making it equally satisfactory for light fall and heavy winter.

Special Jackets

Then there are the cotton rayon battle jackets lined with gay plaid flannel. Each jacket has its own accompanying shirt, done up in the plaid to match the lining. And there are also gray flannel, taffeta and smoking jackets; suede vests, campus coats with white stripes running down the sleeves ready for the varsity; plaid wool and orion coats; and a fabulous "school-back" jacket which has a papoose-type pocket in back, running from side seam to side seam, enabling boys to store books and papers in it if rain should start.

As Schwartz says, not without some prejudice: "Boys have more fashion than their fathers this year."

And as he adds, not without some honesty: "And if fathers come through for their boys as anticipated, they won't have enough money left for a good cigar."

NEW INDIAN POLICY

Newly-named Indian Commissioner Glenn Emmons, New Mexico banker, says he will propose rapid liquidation of government stewardship of the Indians.

Emmons agrees with those who contend that a well-intentioned but confused paternalistic policy has kept the Indians as children in an adult's world. Emmons would accelerate the process by which they may become increasingly self-sufficient as a people and be turned loose into the main stream of American life.

The new commissioner proposed to reclaim unproductive reservation acreage to help farm-minded Indians to operate as individuals and would encourage tribal industries for those who prefer non-agrarian pursuits. Health and education policies would continue to be encouraged.

This is said to be "the golden noon of summer." A long suffering public would be willing to exchange it for something of less value if it would bring the temperature down.

When a Kansas newspaper announces that the 1953 wheat harvest has been postponed one year, it gives the impression that it has inside information as to when it will start to rain.

Mrs. Kinsey's Poise Barrier To Publicity

By Inez Robb

By International News Service
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 24 — Yes, Virginia, there is a Mrs. Kinsey.

She is a small, compact woman with warm, twinkling brown eyes and almost black hair, touched only lightly with gray and worn in a plain, waved bob.

She is poised, calm and relaxed, too, which may have helped her and her family weather the sudden impact of international fame that instantly enveloped her husband, Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, after the 1948 publication of his controversial book, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male."

These same qualities will probably serve as armor after the publication of his companion book "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female," to be published early in the autumn.

Even if lightning is destined to play around their heads once more, Dr. Kinsey and his wife will find quiet and peace in their garden.

"He likes to garden and he loves music." Mrs. Kinsey said at a luncheon prepared by Dr. Kinsey's staff and served in a room next to her husband's office in Wylie Hall on the campus of Indiana University.

We have a new recorder and we both enjoy it, but the rumor that my husband plays the cello is greatly exaggerated. We do have a piano, but it hasn't been touched in years except when I dust it."

Another guest asked Mrs. Kinsey why she didn't "make" the doctor, who has recently been in a hospital, go away for a long vacation, now that the new book is finished.

Mrs. Kinsey looked in amusement at the guest and said there was no "making" the doctor do anything. "He does what he wants," she said gently. "When he comes home from the office, if I think he doesn't want conversation, I keep quiet."

The years since the publication of "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male" have been so busy and there have been so many demands on the doctor's time that Mrs. Kinsey she paused to shake hands.

voiced one small plaint, "I wish I saw more of him." Their life has been little changed materially by the sensational sales and scientific stir created by Dr. Kinsey's research in sexual behavior.

All profits from the book and allied activities go to the Institute for Sex Research, Inc., which Dr. Kinsey formed in 1947. The Kinseys live now, as in the past, entirely on his salary as a professor of zoology at Indiana University.

"Even on a mule trip to the bottom of the Grand Canyon," she said, "even there, two college boys came running after me to ask if I was related to Dr. Kinsey."

Mrs. Kinsey is the co-ed who married the handsome young professor, Clara McMillen, Class of 21, took a course in zoology at Indiana U. and wound up married to the professor. The Kinseys have three grown children, two daughters and a son. A fourth child died in infancy.

Brown as a berry, Mrs. Kinsey gets that way both in her garden and in Bloomington's swimming pool where she serves as a volunteer swimming instructor for the town's small fry.

"My hair is still wet," she said, as she arrived for luncheon in a fresh white cotton dress with black and orange print.

After luncheon she sat relaxed, her hands full of knitting.

"I'm just putting the finishing touches on a stole," Mrs. Kinsey explained, holding up a hank of pale coral wool. "It started out as a family project. One of my daughters bought the wool a long time ago. I was to knit the skirt for her and she was to knit the blouse. Well, this is the blouse."

Meanwhile Jim Duff, having fizzled badly as a Senator, is sounding out the possibility of running for reelection to the Governorship next year. His friends are out beating the drums on his behalf.

When I found her to make my adieu, she was standing in front of a laboratory sink, a towel in her hands, as one of the staff washed the dishes.

"Just helping out," she said, as she paused to shake hands.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.
(Copyright, 1952,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, July 24 — Reluctant witnesses who plead self-incrimination when testifying before a court, grand jury or committee of Congress, may have had the rug yanked out from under their feet by a new code of law enforcement recently adopted by Congress for the District of Columbia.

Public law 85, 83rd Congress, Chapter 159, is a re-codification of criminal penalties and violations for the federal city. So far it has attracted attention mainly because of provisions which create new penalties for lottery and numbers players, plus the fact that public drinking at sports events is now verboten.

The most important feature of the new legislation, however, and the one which undoubtedly will attract the attention of the so-called Liberals and Communists, is the provision dealing with the use of the fifth amendment. This undoubtedly will be the first section of the law to go to the Supreme Court of the United States for adjudication.

The U. S. Attorney General, Herbert Brownell and his able District Attorney for the District of Columbia, Lee Rover, are responsible for the provision raising the constitutional question.

Heretofore numerous legal experts have studied for long hours trying to find an answer to the question of what to do with those abusing the fifth amendment. Those who do are mostly Communists or their sympathizers who have persecuted themselves one way or another in falsely swearing their allegiance to the U. S.

Hundreds of recent witnesses before committees of Congress and grand juries, have sought refuge behind the fifth amendment on the grounds that their testimony might incriminate them.

The U. S. Senate, after many hours of soul searching and consultation with legal experts, has finally approved the so-called immunity bill, which would permit a committee under certain circumstances to absolve a witness from criminal proceedings if he talks and answers questions. The House has not yet acted on the measure.

Critics of the legislation, while still arguing that it would provide an "immunity bath" for all types of crooks and spies, can now conclude that such witness so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury or contempt committed in so testifying."

In addition to this safeguard, the "judgment" of the U. S. Attorney for the District of Columbia for the production of testimony, records, etc., must be submitted in a written demand to the grand jury and court and become a part of that court record before such demands can be made on reluctant witnesses.

This is a milestone in the creation of necessary leverage to pry out from behind the rocks traitors, spies and their dupes, to say nothing of gamblers, crooks and gangsters.

A hammer or even a tool from the kit in the car will suffice, and the visitor can ring rocks to his heart's content.

This woodland tract on a plateau about 35 feet above the Delaware river, is three miles east of Kintnersville. It is studded with the boulders.

According to geologists, rocks which ring are all composed of the same minerals, principally labradorite, one of the feldspars, and augite, a dark mineral compound, mostly iron and alumina.

It is explained that the reason some of the rocks do not ring is that they contact surrounding rocks at so many points that no ringing sound results. "To ring the rocks like a bell, must be properly suspended" is the reminder.

However, there are sufficient partially "suspended" because of the manner in which they rest on other rocks, that they can be "run" by being struck with a hammer or similar implement.

Contrary to popular opinion ringing rocks areas were not produced by volcanic action, but "their presence can be explained by long continued, slow, quiet, natural processes."

The Bridgeton twp. rocks are near Falls Creek, a stream which meanders to the Delaware river. At the head of the creek gorge is High Falls, a waterfall about 30 feet high, but only five feet in width.

Three of Pennsylvania's ringing rocks areas are said to be located in Bucks county—the one mentioned above; Stony Garden in Haycock Township and Rocky Valley in Springfield township, the latter being near Coopersburg.

The igneous (fire origin) rocks weigh anywhere from several tons down to 50 or so pounds.

SATURDAY, JULY 24 — Born on this first day of the incoming sign, Leo, you are ruled by the sun and will be fiery, impulsive and rather demanding of life. Yet those of you on the cusp will retain some of the prophetic, even crusading characteristics of the outgoing sign. But your tendencies will be more toward the dominant "doer," rather than the theoretical dreamer.

You have considerable talent in many fields and your creative powers in the arts should seek early development if you are to reach the heights to which you are entitled by birth. Your intuitions are exceptionally keen. You are deeply interested in the mysterious and in the occult. Your originality and inventiveness will show itself in many different ways. Some may be practical, others experimental. Learn to distinguish between the two and make full use of all those things that test well and discard those which appear to be too visionary. Your birth sign should give you the ability to do this easily.

You are highly emotional and your romantic nature is very strong. You should wed at an early age, for it will give you your own home and family at a time when you need the encouragement of those you love to do your best work during the formative years. You are susceptible to flattery and will work your fingers to the bone when you feel your efforts are appreciated.

You are not one to be goaded or pushed into anything. But given an incentive, you can go far and reach a fine success at an early age.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

NEW INDIAN POLICY

Newly-named Indian Commissioner Glenn Emmons, New Mexico banker, says he will propose rapid liquidation of government stewardship of the Indians.

Emmons agrees with those who contend that a well-intentioned but confused paternalistic policy has kept the Indians as children in an adult's world. Emmons would accelerate the process by which they may become increasingly self-sufficient as a people and be turned loose into the main stream of American life.

The new commissioner proposed to reclaim unproductive reservation acreage to help farm-minded Indians to operate as individuals and would encourage tribal industries for those who prefer non-agrarian pursuits. Health and education policies would continue to be encouraged.

This is said to be "the golden noon of summer." A long suffering public would be willing to exchange it for something of less value if it would bring the temperature down.

When a Kansas newspaper announces that the 1953 wheat harvest has been postponed one year, it gives the impression that it has inside information as to when it will start to rain.

Mrs. Kinsey's Poise Barrier To Publicity

By Inez Robb
By International News Service
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 24 — (INS) — Yes, Virginia, there is a Mrs. Kinsey.

She is a small, compact woman with warm, twinkling brown eyes and almost black hair, touched only lightly with gray and worn in a plain, waved bob.

She is poised, calm and relaxed, too, which may have helped her and her family weather the sudden impact of international fame that instantly enveloped her husband, Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, after the 1948 publication of his controversial book, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male."

These same qualities will probably serve as armor after the publication of his companion book "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female," to be published early in the autumn.

Even if lightning is destined to play around their heads once more, Dr. Kinsey and his wife will find quiet and peace in their garden.

"He likes to garden and he loves music," Mrs. Kinsey said at a luncheon prepared by Dr. Kinsey's staff and served in a room next to her husband's office in Wylie Hall on the campus of Indiana University.

"We have a new recorder and we both enjoy it, but the rumor that my husband plays the cello is greatly exaggerated. We do have a piano, but it hasn't been touched in years except when I dust it."

Another guest asked Mrs. Kinsey why she didn't "make" the doctor, who has recently been in a hospital, go away for a long vacation, now that the new book is finished.

Mrs. Kinsey looked in amusement at the guest and said there was no "making" the doctor do anything.

"He does what he wants," she said gently. "When he comes home from the office, if I think he doesn't want conversation, I keep quiet."

The years since the publication of "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male" have been so busy and there have been so many demands on the doctor's time that Mrs. Kinsey has paused to shake hands.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

by Fulton Lewis, Jr.
(Copyright, 1953,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, July 24 — Reluctant witnesses who plead self-incrimination when testifying before a court, grand jury or committee of Congress, may have had the rug yanked out from under their feet by a new code of law enforcement recently adopted by Congress for the District of Columbia.

Public law 85, 83rd Congress, Chapter 159, is a re-codification of criminal penalties and violations for the federal city. So far it has attracted attention mainly because of provisions which create new penalties for lottery and numbers players, plus the fact that public drinking at sports events is now verboten.

It should be noted that "in the public interest," is the key clause in the section.

If sustained constitutionally it would appear that the provision applies to committees of Congress as well, although this may have to be spelled out in separate legislation, at any rate, the Justice Department now has taken steps to root out from behind the fifth amendment refuge those who are endangering our security by refusing to testify before grand juries and courts on gambling, corruption and Communist issues.

As a safeguard to the individual's constitutional rights, the new law states:

"But such witness shall not be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled after having claimed his privilege (fifth amendment) against self-incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise; except that such witness so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury or contempt committed in so testifying."

In addition to this safeguard, the "judgment" of the U. S. Attorney for the District of Columbia for the production of testimony, records, etc., must be submitted in a written demand to the grand jury and court and become a part of that court record before such demands can be made on reluctant witnesses.

This is a milestone in the creation of necessary leverage to pry out from behind the rocks traitors, spies and their dupes, to say nothing of gamblers, crooks and gangsters.

Hand for Governor Duff nearly two hundred million dollars of unspent cash.

In a four-year spending spree, much of it geared to the political objective of putting Duff in the United States Senate, Duff spent all the surplus and, by a policy of deficit financing, rolled up debts which will require a billion and a quarter dollars to pay back.

Challenged to justify his record and to render an accounting of his stewardship, Duff simply said that his critics were dealing in "fantastic hoopla."

Armed with the State's patronage and aided by the in-attention of a public which was distressed over the Korean war's outbreak, Duff moved triumphantly on to the United States Senate.

The reasons therefore why the name "Jim Duff" seems to us so appropriate for the new sales tax are:

1. It was Jim Duff who piled up the debts which now make this tax necessary.

2. It was Jim Duff's cohorts in the State legislature who for 18 months blocked any sensible, businesslike approach to solving the State's financial crisis.

Meanwhile Jim Duff, having fizzled badly as a Senator, is sounding out the possibility of running for reelection to the Governorship next year. His friends are out beating the drums on his behalf.

"Just helping out," she said, as

Letters To The Editor

(The Bristol Courier welcomes letters from readers. As evidence of good faith, please sign your letter. Your name will be omitted if you wish. No anonymous letters will be considered.)

Dear Editor:

After last night's meeting concerning the inadequate taxes returning to Tullytown Borough from business and stores in Levittown, I feel that these stores should be taxed a fair amount, fair so that they will pay their way and help meet the increasing cost of services provided by Tullytown borough because of the new town built by Levitt.

It is customary that stores and shops in a business section of a city or town be assessed more than the residential area, because the business properties are worth far more per square foot. Is this taken into account in Levittown? Or are the stores being assessed on a par with the Levittown houses? I have heard reports that the stores, which I understand are owned by Levitt and leased to various chain stores and business houses, are being assessed far lower than ordinary. This, if true, is unfair to all other property owners of Tullytown Borough, as they will be forced to pay higher taxes to offset such consideration given Levitt stores.

Let these stores be taxed according to an equitable assessment, imposed by an impartial board of assessors, and then everyone will be happy and municipal services in Tullytown will improve—and better still, will be paid for. Unless this is done, I greatly fear the borough will go broke trying to increase its police force and provide other needed services because of the increased demands due to the new Levittown community in its midst.

Unique Bra May Startle Nation

By Emily Belser

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Jan Sterling said today she plans to revolutionize the American bra industry by marketing a snappy Italian unmentionable she just brought back from Italy.

"I found out why you hear all those rumors about the 'natural' attributes of the Italian girl," Jan added.

"This is why."

And she held out a wispy garment that looked like a bunch of lacy shoestrings. There is no doubt about it. The creation exposes the Italian girls as devotees of the "open-air uplift."

It had no visible beginning or end and no inside or outside. It's really a skeleton frame for a bra.

"I found this remarkable thing in a Rome department store," she laughed, "it's about the only kind you can buy in Italy and apparently the only type of bra the Italian girls wear."

"I was so intrigued I brought it home and immediately breezed over to Paramount so they could take a gander at the 'new Jan!'

"It created such a furore everybody from prop men to producers were making bets I'd never be allowed to wear it in my new picture. But I am going to wear it—with variations, of course."

Designer Edith Head was called in to effect the necessary changes.

Said Edith:

"It's sensational! Too sensational, really. But anything that makes an actress look more attractive is good business."

Jan is having sketches made of the bra which will be presented to a yet-unnamed American manufacturer.

"I don't know how many American husbands will allow their wives to wear this creation," Jan warned, "but as for me, Paul (Douglas) is in London."

Jan wore the bra in a swimming sequence for Paramount's "Alaska Seas," and when she climbed out of the water discovered she had that much coveted "nude look" so hard to come by in such dreachy scenes.

"It was brazen," she laughed.

New Paris Bottles Stimulate Talk, Aid Business

PARIS, (INS) — The latest Paris beverage bottles are guaranteed conversation makers — and not only because of their contents.

Covering liquor and wine-bottles with tressed caning or nylon, a French craftsman has created bottles with personality. Each bottle has an outside to match the contents.

The whiskey bottle goes Scottish in a nylon caning cover of black with a tartan pattern. The stopper is a miniature Scottish cap.

The gin container is disguised as a "Beef-Eater," with a costume dressed in caning in the original bright colors. The cork is hidden in the high black fur hat.

French Benedictine — a liqueur made by monks out of herbs — has a dark brown cover complete with hood and cowl. Instead of the cork a tonsured monk's head tops this bottle.

The rum bottle resembles a miniature Negress from the African jungle. The chocolate colored caning dress is trimmed with a little straw skirt and has many rows of multi-colored pearls around the bottle.

Blonde Ambassador Helps Foreign Diplomats Travel

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The Eisenhower Administrator doesn't know it, but it has an unofficial lady ambassador.

She's petite, blue-eyed, blonde Morvie Colby of Washington, who is using the velvet glove and flashing smile to make friends for America in far corners of the globe.

As sales representative extraordinary for Northwest Airlines, she has almost a unique job that makes her the envy of career girls.

Her "beat" for NWA covers the 65 foreign embassies in the nation's capital, and a typical working day may take her, via those embassies, to France, Spain, Egypt, Chile, South Africa and Ecuador.

When smartly-tailored Morvie rings the bell at an embassy or its chancery, she is greeted cordially and escorted to a reception room. There she's met by the staff member who handles travel arrangements for his government's employees. Armed with travel folders, schedules and data on visas and passports, she sets up shop and quickly cuts through red tape. She also lends a hand to those non-English speaking people who telephone their embassies for help with travel plans.

Ask Morvie if she ever has language difficulties and she says: "Never." The embassy personnel speaks several languages, and all of them put my everyday English to shame."

Morie didn't just step into her job. She qualified for it by background, training and experience. She took business courses in her hometown of Milwaukee and has traveled extensively.

On her first day at the new embassy job she timidly made a stop at the Afghanistan Chancery. She was escorted to a self-operating elevator and directed to the third floor. At her destination she found herself facing a blank wall. She seemed seated in the little cage.

Morie itself is a conglomeration of alien cultures; yet, in spite of it, the Philippines capital has remained Oriental. Its skyline is Occidental, so are its tempo and general atmosphere.

Manila tours are handled by the Philippine Society of Travel Agents. A tour of the city and suburbs costs $2.50. It is handled by professional tourist guides and consists of three hours of ride in automobiles.

Paradise Offered To Tourists in 7000 Philippine Islands

MANILA — The Philippine Islands — comprising 7,000 palm-fringed islands in the western Pacific — are a veritable tourist paradise spot in Asia.

The main island is Luzon. The principal city is Manila, one of the great trade centers in the Far East. Manila is located right in the middle of the Philippine island group, and is easily accessible from other cities of the world, both by air and by sea. Manila is barely 31 hours flying time from San Francisco.

Manila itself is a conglomeration of alien cultures; yet, in spite of it, the Philippines capital has remained Oriental. Its skyline is Occidental, so are its tempo and general atmosphere.

Manila tours are handled by the Philippine Society of Travel Agents. A tour of the city and suburbs costs $2.50. It is handled by professional tourist guides and consists of three hours of ride in automobiles.

The tour covers the ancient city "Intramuros" — where the Japanese made their last stand during the 1945 liberation of Manila by the American forces. The tour proceeds to Escolta, the city's main business center, then takes in Rizal Avenue, to the Santo Tomas University — interment camp for allied prisoners of war during the Japanese occupation.

The tourist winds up in the historic Malacan Palace, former home of Spanish and American governors-general and now official residence of the President of the Philippines Republic.

Startled, but not panicky, she considered the situation, finally pressed the button for the first floor and descended. There she found the answer to the riddle. The apologetic attendant explained that she should have done turnabout-face, because the exit door was at the rear of the elevator.

"He told me that other women had become terribly excited," Morvie says, "thinking they were trapped in some ingenious Oriental device. Some even screamed. We agreed they'd been seeing too many television thrill shows."

On another occasion, when she telephoned the Spanish embassy for an appointment, they inquired cordially if she'd like to come right away "and meet Christopher Columbus."

Morie gulped, but careful questioning revealed that the nobleman who'd inherited the name actually was a visitor.

Morie's job also involves travel that sometimes gets her to unexpected places. Recently she flew to Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, to clear up passport mixups.

"Has she visited the Russian embassy?"

Not yet, she confesses, but says it's only because of her heavy schedule. One of these days she plans to present her card and see what happens.

MORE CHEVROLET TRUCKS
IN USE THAN ANY OTHER MAKE!

Big truck users, small truck users, all truck users buy more Chevrolet trucks than any other make. It stands to reason Chevrolet trucks must offer more of what you want.

When you stop to think about it, the best proof of outstanding value in any product is continued public preference. For when folks discover a "good thing," sales go up and stay up. That's the way it is with Chevrolet trucks. Year after year Chevrolet trucks outsell all other makes. And they're the top selling trucks in America today . . . for the twelfth straight production year.

This is a mighty important fact to consider before you buy your next truck. You'll also want to consider that, while Chevrolet trucks give you more features you want, it's the lowest-priced truck line of all!

Whatever your hauling or delivery need, think it over, when you're thinking of a new truck. Then come in and talk it over with us.

Veterans Q. and A.

IT'S PROFITABLE TO BUY SELL RENT HIRE THRU THE WANT/ADS!

I have a National Service Life Insurance term policy, and I've decided to leave my dividend money with the VA to pay premiums that I happen to miss. What will VA do if my term insurance expires and I don't take action to renew and pay the premium myself?

At the end of the term period, VA will pay the premium required for renewing your term policy out of your dividend credit — unless you write to VA and request otherwise before the present term expires.

I plan to take my medical internship training under the Korean GI Bill. Will I be paid GI allowance as an on-the-job trainee or will I get the higher rates paid to full-time classroom students?

You will receive the rates paid to those taking full-time classroom training. However, your medical internship course must be accredited and approved by the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association. Its length also must be approved by the Council. No allowances at all may be paid to veterans in non-approved internships.

A few years ago I received an automobile under VA's program of providing up to $1,600 toward the cost of a car for certain disabled veterans. My car is beginning to show signs of wear, and I wonder if I could get another VA grant to buy a new car.

Under the law, you are not entitled to another grant to buy a new car.

Help Hubby's Disposition By Cleaning Pipes

NEW YORK, (INS) — One way to a man's heart is through his pipes. Keep them sweet, clean and smoking-fresh and any pipe-smoking mate will be sure he's the perfect wife.

The necessary equipment consists of pipe cleaners, a reamer for cleaning the pipe bowl, and a bottle of sweetener. Then follow these rules, suggested by Morris L. Levinson, president of Kaywoodie Pipes.

1. Empty bowl of all tobacco by tapping gently in palm.

2. Separate pipe into its two parts: stem or mouthpiece and bowl or tobacco chamber.

3. Run a pipe cleaner through stem several times to absorb moisture and tobacco.

4. Repeat with another cleaner through the bore into the bowl. Fold cleaner and clean tobacco chamber.

5. Use reamer to scrape off layers of carbon left on bowl walls by burned tobacco. Remove all but a thin carbon film.

6. Refresh and sweeten sooted pipes with sweetener applied with saturated cleaner (neglected cleaning will sour pipes). Soak toothbrush and scrub bowl with sweetener.

7. Reassemble pipe.

8. Place cleaned, freshened pipe, bowl down, in pipe rack overnight. Leave pipe cleaner in bore to absorb remaining moisture.

9. Revive a fine pipe's luster by rubbing briar portion against the side of the nose. Natural skin oils give pipe a final glowing sheen.

I have a National Service Life Insurance term policy, and I've decided to leave my dividend money with the VA to pay premiums that I happen to miss. What will VA do if my term insurance expires and I don't take action to renew and pay the premium myself?

At the end of the term period, VA will pay the premium required for renewing your term policy out of your dividend credit — unless you write to VA and request otherwise before the present term expires.

I plan to take my medical internship training under the Korean GI Bill. Will I be paid GI allowance as an on-the-job trainee, or will I get the higher rates paid to full-time classroom students?

You will receive the rates paid to those taking full-time classroom training. However, your medical internship course must be accredited and approved by the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association. Its length also must be approved by the Council. No allowances at all may be paid to veterans in non-approved internships.

the necessary equipment consists of pipe cleaners, a reamer for cleaning the pipe bowl, and a bottle of sweetner. Then follow these rules, suggested by Morris L. Lewin, president of Kaywoodie Pipes.

1. Empty bowl of all tobacco by tapping gently in palm.

2. Separate pipe into its two parts: stem or mouthpiece and bowl or tobacco chamber.

3. Run a pipe cleaner through the bore into the bowl. Fold cleaner and clean tobacco chamber.

4. Repeat with another cleaner through the bore into the bowl. Fold cleaner and clean tobacco chamber.

5. Use reamer to scrape off layers of carbon left on bowl walls by burned tobacco. Remove all but a thin carbon film.

6. Refresh and sweeten sooted pipes with sweetner applied with saturated cleaner (neglected cleaning will sour pipes). Soak toothbrush and scrub bowl with sweetner.

7. Reassemble pipe.

8. Place cleaned, freshened pipe, bowl down, in pipe rack overnight. Leave pipe cleaner in bore to absorb remaining moisture.

9. Revive a fine pipe's luster by rubbing briar portion against the side of the nose. Natural skin oils give pipe a final glowing sheen.

Franklin Downs Jefferson, 10-5, On Memorial Field

Franklin A. C. spotted Jefferson four runs in the first inning and then fought an uphill battle to cop the decision of the Bristol Softball League game played on Memorial field. Final score was 10-5.

The winning team had 14 safe blows. Sonny Field fattened his batting average by getting three out of four, including a two-bagger. Bob Lattanzi had three singles in four times up while Tony Palumbo put the finishing touches on the Jefferson team in the sixth by slamming a home run with Field and Bert Barretta on base.

Nick Lomma was the winning pitcher. He twirled six complete frames and seemed to be tiring when Manager Bert Barretta sent Chick Stansky to the mound. Stansky did not allow a hit, the three Jefferson bungles coming off the delivery of Lomma.

Reggie Gerome received the drubbing. He did well for the first five innings when he held the Franklin team to six hits. But in the sixth, he was trapped for four runs and a lead which Franklin failed to relinquish.

Auto Boys Top 3M, 6-0, to Stay On Loop Top Rung

"Bill" Wigham held 3M's to five hits last evening as he pitched the Auto Boys nine to a 6-0 victory and enabled the Mill Streeters to stay in the race for first place in the Bristol Softball League.

Wigham's fast ball had the scotch-tape makers at his mercy all evening. He fanned six batters and with the exception of the second, 3M's did not have more than one runner on base at any time. It had two on in the second.

Auto Boys also had difficulty in denting home plate. It wasn't until Freddie Costantino rapped out a home run with Joe Sallustio and Al Larkins on base that the Capeci-managed team was assured of victory. The four-ply clout came in the seventh frame.

Auto Boys tabbed 9 hits. Costantino had a single in addition to his homer while Wigham along with three out of four. Sallustio had a triple and single in two official trips to the platter.

Amy Lewis did the pitching for the losers. 3M's scored an earned run in the second and errors caused the second run in the sixth. Another earned run was produced in the sixth and the side should have been retired before Costantino made his clutch.

Bonner Hits 4th

Joe Bonner's fourth home run of the season gave the Hawks a 3-1 victory over the V. F. W. team last evening on Rohm and Haas field. The triumph gave the Hawks the championship of the Bristol Little Bigger League.

Bonner's four-bagger came in the last half of the third inning with Williams on base and the score knotted at 1-1.

Claude Hearn started on the hill for the Hawks and pitched two and one-third innings before being relieved by Frank Williams. There were two on base when Williams went in. He retired the next two batters in order. Williams ended up by fanning nine. Ralph Cahill, the V. F. W. hurler, had 4 strikeouts.

Tommy Profy did some nice fielding for the winners.

Croydon Midgets

Defeat Bristol

The Croydon Comets, Midget Phils, scored an impressive 5-0 shutout over the Bristol Boys Club last evening at the Croydon diamond, in a Lower Bucks County Youth Conference League tilt.

Roy Johnson, twirler for the victors, held the Bristolites to a brace of hits, and rammed out two of the eight safeties collected by the winners. It marked the tenth straight triumph of the Croydon lads.

Leading batsmen for Croydon in the contest were Jackie Matusek, Charles Walker and Roy Johnson, with two hits each and Charles Anderson and J. Wolf, who banged out one each.

Tony Rudy, manager of the Croydon lads, in reporting last evening's game, also made an appeal for intermediate teams seeking games to contact him as Croydon has reorganized their Juniors. Phone Bristol 8-7586 or write Rudy at 1214 Delaware ave., Croydon.

Drive for Cleaner Streams Sought By Group

A campaign for clean streams and banks of streams is sought by the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs of Bucks County, in a letter to The Bristol Courier today.

Signed by Carl A. Pollock, delegate to the Federation, it was accompanied by a note from Leroy B. Stackhouse of Newtown, who added: "Will you kindly publish Mr. Pollock's letter. It will help to keep our streams open and possibly eliminate some of the throwing of refuse on the banks of streams. I know the sportsmen and land-owners will appreciate such publicity."

Mr. Pollock's letter:

Editor, Courier:

Dear Sir:

At the last meeting of the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs of Bucks County I was requested to contact you and request your cooperation in a campaign we are undertaking to improve the fishing in Bucks County. If we are successful in Bucks County the campaign will then spread through the whole state.

As your newspaper is the most widely read in this section you can be of tremendous help to all concerned.

What we are attempting to do is to get all fisherman and all others concerned to be clean sportsmen. Cleanliness should be practiced by all who visit stream banks, be they fisherman, picnickers or nature lovers in any form.

The Fish Commission and the Sports Clubs have stocked many more miles of streams in Bucks County, and had them opened to public fishing, than in previous years. This increased opened waters will not be enjoyed for long unless some bad practices are stopped.

At the top of the list is littering the stream and banks with rubbish of all kinds, papers, bottles and cans left lying on the stream banks or thrown into the stream itself. Picnic refuse is another bad offender, it should not be left on the stream banks or thrown into the stream to add to the pollution, help us to remove pollution not to increase it.

We are the guests of the property owners. They own the property upon which we must trespass. We must respect their rights. Don't dig worms and other bait and in doing so deface the property. Above all do not damage fences, they are there at great cost to the property owner to keep live stock where they want it, not wandering and damaging others property.

Our wardens are having quite a job trying to pacify the property owners along the Neshaquiny because of the bad practices. Some of the streams that were opened this year will be closed to future fishing unless these bad practices are stopped.

The property owners are complaining and rightly so. Let's all be clean, conscientious visitors and leave the stream and their banks as nature intended them to be.

The earth's surface is rising slowly in some places, sinking in others, says Lincoln Barnett in the current Reader's Digest. The whole of France appears to be tilting slowly northward, rising in the south, sinking along the Channel coast. If this movement continues, the Atlantic will ultimately inundate great areas of France.

The property owners are complaining and rightly so. Let's all be clean, conscientious visitors and leave the stream and their banks as nature intended them to be.

Drive for Cleaner Streams Sought By Group

A campaign for clean streams and banks of streams is sought by the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs of Bucks County, in a letter to the Bristol Courier today.

Signed by Carl A. Pollock, delegate to the Federation, it was accompanied by a note from Leroy B. Stackhouse of Newtown, who added: "Will you kindly publish Mr. Pollock's letter. It will help to keep our streams open and possibly eliminate some of the throwing of refuse on the banks of streams. I know the sportsmen and land-owners will appreciate such publicity."

Mr. Pollock's letter:

Editor, Courier:

Dear Sir:

At the last meeting of the Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs of Bucks County I was requested to contact you and request your cooperation in a campaign we are undertaking to improve the fishing in Bucks County. If we are successful in Bucks County the campaign will then spread through the whole state.

As your newspaper is the most widely read in this section you can be of tremendous help to all concerned.

What we are attempting to do is to get all fishermen and all others concerned to be clean sportsmen. Cleanliness should be practiced by all who visit stream banks, be they fisherman, picnickers or nature lovers in any form.

The Fish Commission and the Sports Clubs have stocked many more miles of streams in Bucks County, and had them opened to public fishing, than in previous years. This increased opened waters will not be enjoyed for long unless some bad practices are stopped.

At the top of the list is littering the stream and banks with rubbish of all kinds, papers, bottles and cans left lying on the stream banks or thrown into the stream itself. Picnic refuse is another bad offender. It should not be left on the stream banks or thrown into the stream to add to the pollution, help us to remove pollution not to increase it.

We are the guests of the property owners. They own the property upon which we must trespass. We must respect their rights. Don't dig worms and other bait and in doing so deface the property. Above all do not damage fences, they are there at great cost to the property owner to keep live stock where they want it, not wandering and damaging others property.

Our wardens are having quite a job trying to pacify the property owners along the Neshaminy because of the bad practices. Some of the streams that were opened this year will be closed to future fishing unless these bad practices are stopped.

The property owners are complaining and rightly so. Let's all be clean, conscientious visitors and leave the stream and their banks as nature intended them to be.

The earth's surface is rising slowly in some places, sinking in others, says Lincoln Barnett in the current Reader's Digest. The whole of France appears to be tilting slowly northward, rising in the south, sinking along the Channel coast. If this movement continues, the Atlantic will ultimately inundate great areas of France.
